The unique region officially covers an area of 790 square miles in the upper part of the southwest region of England and is the country's largest officially designated 'Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty' we see (Cotswolds Fact Sheet). Popular with both the English itself and international visitors from all over the world, the area is known for soft hills ('wolds'), outstanding countryside with river valleys, water pastures and beech forest, sleepy ancient limestone villages, historical market towns and for being such 'typically English' where time has stood silent for more than 300 years. A short break or even an extensive holiday in the Cotswolds will make you want more and you will book your next Cotswolds holiday once you return home! The Cotswolds cover a large area – nearly 800 square miles – and runs through five countries (Gloucestershire, Oxfordshire, Warwickshire, Wiltshire and Worcestershire). One of the entirety of visiting the Cotswolds is exploring the different areas, each with its own identity, but all with those who feature Cotswold: golden stone and rolling hills, the 'wolds'. Explore quintessential English villages of honey-coloured stone; take in beautiful, vibrant market towns; visit some of the country's largest palaces, castles and land houses; marvel at the natural world in award-winning reserves and at some of the most famous arboretas in Britain; walking through breathtaking landscapes along historical roads; or make a splash in our more-country area with its own domestic beach. There is a live buzz in places like Cirencester, Tewkesbury, Stroud and Witney. There are many things to do for the whole family. And an arty heartbeat too - which extends to the wealth of festivals and events that testify to the creative vibe of the region. The Cotswolds are also richly rural: more than 3,000 miles of footpaths and glasses to explore; ancient bushveld and wildflower meadows; 4,000 miles of historic Cotswold stone walls divide the landscape. Unsurprisingly, this landscape offers a rich harvest of food and beverages with local cheese, meat and drinks that have prominently spread on the menus of the gastro pubs, old repergents, colorful cheeses and fine dining restaurants. The accommodation is just as widely varying and welcoming: enjoy the best of country house hotels, go chic and boutique, take a spa break, snuggle up in a beautiful B&B, put a tent at a beautifully situated campsite. Or opt for a place of your own: there is a striking array of cottages and manor houses to rent. From fantastic gardens to amazing stores, we could go on... but why not come and see for yourself? As The Cotswold Tour Guide I have been providing distinguishing customers with luxury tours across the Cotswolds and beyond since 2011.
